"NATIVE" ECONOMY.

PHŒNIX HAT AND CAP MANUFATORY,

No. 103 FULTON STREET.

The extensive application of the system of a small profits, cash payments and large sales to many branches of business in this city within a few years, and the eminent success which this plan deserves, and has in almost every instance received, has led the subscriber to test its application to the HATTING business. In a city whose unabitants are widely distinguished for neariess and the sin dress, and at the same time for economy and thrift, there seems great reason to believe that a system which enables the community to gratify a landable partiality for neatness at an unprecedentedly small expense, will meet with no small degree of favor. Determined to ascertain whether a branch of business which concerns the head and pocket of every man in the community, cannot be conducted on this plan, the subscriber has employed a large number of the best workmen in the manufacturing and finishing departments; also skillful and tasty Cap Makers. Each devautment is under the constant supervision of an experienced foreman. These arrangements, together with his intimate personal knowledge of the business, great facilities for purchasing to the best advantage—low rent—free from the ruinous expenses of Broadway—inflexible adherence to 'cash on delivery'—a determination to keep pace with all improvements, and with the current Fashions of the day, enable him to say with all confidence, that he now offers to the citizens of New York, articles in his line fully equal in style and durability to those sold in Broadway, and unequalled in cheapuress and economy to any ever offered in this city.

year, no matter what Common Council may be in power. No discretion can be exercised in regard to them.

Yet the Comptroller, instead of giving the preceding Common Council credit for punctuality, in making these large payments as they became due, within their comparatively short period of time, thereby preserving unimpaired the credit of the city, has deduced from this very circumstance results unfavorable to them by drawing a comparison between these payments with reference to the relative terms of the two Common Councils, to make it appear that there has been "an average decrease of expenditure for the support of the city government, by the present Common Council, of $89.164.53 and eighty-two hundredths of a cent per month "or for "seven-and a-half months a total decrease of $736.234.03 and sixty-five hundredths of a cent"—when from the exposition which I have given, it would appear that the "decrease" in the amount of these payment under the preceding Common Council of the floating debt instalment, and nearly the entire amount of the interest on the city debt required to be paid within the financial year. It will be per ceived, therefore, that these payments have nothing to do with the action of either Common Council in increasing or diminishing the expenditures of the city, a sum having been leviced in the taxes to meet their precise amount. The calculation of the Comptroller, therefore, going to the $30.100 part of a cent, falls to the ground.

The statement contained in the other extract of the Comptroller's report, is equally fallacious in its results. The extract is as follows:—

"Total expense of support of the city governmant for the year 1944, deducting the amounts paid on account of floating debt, interest on city debt, and common schools, as will be seen on page 61, is $1.423,751.65, of which amount there has been expended by the present Third Quality . $19,417 32

Showing an average decrease of expenditure as per above, for support of the city government by present Common Council, of $29,417 32 per month, being for seven and a half months, a total decrease of $29,079 92.

The above statement is exclusive of amounts paid on floating debt, interest on city debt, and common schools. The above statement is exclusive of amounts paid on floating debt, interest on city debt, and common schools. The above statement embraces all the objects of expenditure for the support of the city government, which are subject to be influenced by the action of the Common Council The Comptroller, however, in making the comparison of expenditure between the late and present Common Council, with reference to the time of each within the financial year, has based his comparison upon fulse premises, and is therefore entirely fallacious in his conclusions, as I shall endeavor to show; and if I be in error in any of my statements, it will afford me pleasure to be corrected by the Finance Department.

Bills incurred within the last three weeks in December are usually thrown over and paid in January and February Consequently the first 4½ menths of the late Common Council included the expenses of three weeks of the preceding 7½ wonths have been thrown into January of the present year. It follows, therefore, that the comparison should be as 5½ months are to 6½ months, ustead of as ½ to 7½ months as assumed by the Comptroller. On page 61 of Comptroller's report, the actual expenditure make within the 4½ months is set down at $505,678 84, and the sum of $616 643 09 assumed by the Comptroller as the expenditure min hin that the pried, is made up by adding the sum of $61,964 25, paid by the present Common Council for expenditures said to have been incurred during the preceding Common Council, by which the 4½ months of their term is made to assume the payments of the succeeding fortnight, as well as those of the three weeks preceding that term; while the succeeding 7½ months under the pre are nevertheless important, as showing the pertial tendency of that report.

The late Street Commissioner on leaving office, paid into the Treasury several unexpended balances on various accounts, amounting in the aggregate to upwards of $5000. The Comptroller credits the expenditures on these accounts with the balances thus returned in making up the actual expenditure of the year, as compared with the previous year; but gives no credit for them in comparing the expenditures under the respective Common Councils. For instance, on page 83, the Comptroller states "From the expenditure of $30,885 & (for street expenses) should be deducted the amount of $2375 & fo, paid into the Treasury by the late Street Commissioner." "This will make the actual cost for the year $28,009 96" On pages 45 and 5, in giving the comparative expenditures under the former and present account is stated to be $8,138 46, where at the sum of $2,375 & fo, acknowledged to have been paid in by the late Street Commissioner, should have been deducted from it, which would have shown the actual expenditure to have heen but $5,762 88 for the four and a half months, which being added to the sum of $22,747 09, the expenditure stated to have been made during the seven and a half months under the present Corporation, would show the actual expenditure to have been $29,509 $8, as stated by the Comptroller on page 83.

To what extent similar inaccuracies run through the report, of course I am unable to judge, from the short time I have occupied in examining the report—but enough has been shown, I trust, to controvert the statement contained in the extracts to which I have referred, and that the calculations have been made upon falsered and the statements contained in the extracts to which I have referred, and that the calculations have been made upon falsered and the statements contained in the extracts to which I have referred, and that the calculations have been made upon falsered and the statement contained in the extracts to which I have referred. [From the Journal of Commerce.]

Bishop Onderdonk's trial reached here on Wed-

Comptroller's Report.) in which it is stated that the bills incurried by the Alms Heuse Department, remaining unpaid at the end of the year, ameunt to the sum of $19 494; and the same may be salely said of all the other departments.

The only correct data upon which to make the comparison of the expenses of the two Common Councils, would be, as I have shown in the case of salaries, to ascertain the exact amount of bills paid in the 44 months belonging to the previous year, and deduct such amount from the expenditure charged by the Comptroller to that ceriod, and the amount of bills incurred by the present Common Council, within the succeeding 74 months, which has been thrown into the present year, and add it to the amount charged by the Comptroller as the expenditure within that period. A more satisfactory comparisor, however, would have been, to have compared the expenditures of the present Common Council with those of their predecessors, during the same period of the previous year. In either case I have no doubt but that such comparison would be strongly in favor of the previous Common Council. I have reason to believe that an unu sual amount of the expenditure of the 74 months of the present Common Council, has been thrown into the prevent year for payment, not only to favor the comparison which has been presented to the public in the Comptroller's report, but to conceal the fact of a large increase of expenditure during the year 1844—the same having exceeded, according to the Comptroller's computation of expenditure, the amount levied for the purpose, $171, 1140, and having exceeded in a large sum the amount expended the previous year.

I have shown in the case of salaries, that a larger sum by $15,672 94 has been thrown for the seven and a half months into the present year, for payment, than was thrown overfrom 1843 for payment, within the first four and a half months of 1844, which should be udded to that amount. I have also shown that the sum of $19,444 of the Alms House expenditure of the seven and a ha esday—a very large number have been sold from $1 50 to 50 cents per copy. Different opinions are expressed by the multitude-some believe the Bishop not guileless, but that it was not a case for conviction. A few deem the sentence merciful; but much the larger class say that it should all but much the larger class say that it should all have been buried in oblivion, and consigned to the tomb of the Capulets with the Bishop—that the notoriety is the greater evil than the offence. This community of mixed morals and population have anomalous notions on the subject of chastity. Had the Bishop indulged amorous inclinations with a quatroon or mulatto, to breathe a whisper of reprosch would have been deemed an attack upon the peculiar institutions of the south. This facility of association with the colored race protects the Caucasians with all the chivalry which Burke thought ought "to avenge a look that threatened the Dauphiness of France with insult." Many distinguished citizens of Louisiana raise large families of each species, sometimes residing in the same street. Civil Code of La., Art. 137. Speaking of the church reminds me that Dr. Hawks has accepted the invitation of the Episcopal Church in Canal street, and is now Rector of that Church, with a salary of five thousand dollars, and a house which has been provided for him near Annunciation Square, at the rent of $1000. The Dr. has gone to Holly Springs, Mississippi, to remove his family to New Orleans. He has preached three times on one Sunday to crowded and admiring audiences. To go from grave to gay, the heavens have never smiled more dropitious than during the past winter. The Legislature Convention, two Menageries, circusses, and three theatres, have all been in blast, and well filled, though cotton is redundant, and so low that a shrewd man yesterday observed slavery could not continue ten years at the present prices of cotton and sagar. A fire broke out in Binghampton, about one o'clock on Saturday morning, by which five stores were destroyed.

Southern Negroes.—The fanatics at the North, who spend such a vast deal of sympathy for the "poor alwe," will do well to read the following from the Madison Journal, published at Richmond, in this State.—We ourselves know of one or more a milar instances which have occurred within a few years past. One fact like this is worth a volume of fanaticism and theory.

Sometime in the early part of last summer, an old and faithful set vant, belonging to Oiver B. Cobb, Esq., of this parish, was anxious before he was laid in the dust, to return to Virginia, the home of his childhood. Old Issue asked his master's permission to go back and see his old master, and his own relatives and friends. Leave was granted him, and in a few days issue's saving, were drawn from the old stocking that had long been his money chest, and with a sew dollars added by his master, he started on his trip. He travelled through several free States, and after visiting every portion of Virginis in which his own relatives or those of his former master remided, he wended his way homeward, after an absence of some five or six menths, bringing with him various presents to his master and his master's children. The benevolent in Cincinnati and divers other places, begged and entreated the old man not to return to end his days in alayery, but they did not succeed. He said he left his wife and children in the South, and a master that was kind to him, and he preferred returning. The old man had never seen white people begging until he saw them there; and if nothing but interest induced his return, he wisely thought "if white folks have to beg, what come of old nigger?" On his return he resumed his labors, perfectly contented with his lot, and he suffers not a pang of regret that he is not ree and like those he saw reveiling in freedom and lwretchedness—New Orleane Tepic, Feb. 27.
